

Abstract of the Disclosure

An electronic mail server device includes a reception unit which receives an electronic mail, a determination unit which determines whether a prescribed processing condition is satisfied in accordance with the received electronic mail, and a control unit which executes a prescribed processing to the received electronic mail when the processing condition is satisfied.